Steel Plants Head Into Crisis Week

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The steel labor dispute headed today into a week of crisis with the industry planning to start shutting down Tuesday in anticipation of a strike at midnight Sunday.

Some loss of steel, sorely needed by both defense and civilian industry, seemed inevitable because the steel makers wanted to be sure their blast furnaces were emptied of hot metal in advance of any stoppage.

Philip Murray, head of both the CIO and the strike-threatening steelworkers union, withheld action until Thursday on a request by the Wage Stabilization Board for a new strike postponement.

Murray already has put off strike plans three times since Jan. 1. Government officials said they believed he will do so again.

Thursday is the same day the WSB has fixed as its target date for getting out recommendations for settling the complex dispute involving Murray's demands for an 13 1/2-cent hourly pay boost and a score of other items. The steelworkers presently earn a little under $2 an hour.

Murray told the WSB yesterday that the decision on whether to strike or not will be up to the union's 200-man policy committee, which has been called into session here Thursday. Murray pledged that the union will give the new strike-delay plan "serious consideration."

The union probably will have had a peek at the WSB's findings before it makes up its mind. As things stand now, Murray is empowered to call a walkout at any time after midnight Sunday. The union has made strike call has gone out yet.

Steel companies have promised the WSB they will be prepared to bargain with Murray's union within three days after the board's recommendations become known.

Neither the industry nor the union is obliged to accept what the WSB recommends, but its suggestions are expected to be the basis for bargaining.

In Pittsburgh, the U. S. Steel Corp. said it would have to start Tuesday curtailing the production of ferro-manganese, used in hardening steel. Other operations will have to be throttled down beginning Wednesday night, it added.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube also said it would have to start banking furnaces Wednesday.

One portion of Miss Tracy's confession said Keil "threatened to put me on a bed naked and put a snake on me so it would bite me."

Her confession said she had been keeping company with Keil for two months and he had told her he intended to divorce Mrs. Keil and marry her. But after learning she had been going out with other men, the confession said, he told her he wouldn't marry and was going to kill her.

She told police after the shooting she fired six bullets into Keil before he was killed.

Lake Charles Blast Injures Three

Lake Charles, La., March 17 (AP)—Three men were injured in an explosion at the Cities Service refinery here at 4:15 a. m. today.

H. R. Smith, general superintendent of the plant, estimated damages at approximately $10,000. A fire which followed the blast burned for more than an hour and was extinguished by plant firemen.

In serious condition in a hospital was Machinist Paul T. Priest, 32, of Maplewood, who received second and third degree burns from the fire. Two others were reported burned about the hands when they attempted to extinguish the burning clothing.

Smith said the explosion occurred when the C topping unit, which is used to stabilize straight gasoline, was being started. Cause of the explosion and if there must have been a small leak in the unit which released vapors.

This was the second explosion at the plant in the last two months. One man was killed in a $250,000 series of explosions and fire Jan. 30.

Son of Erin in Tribute to St. Patrick

By United Press
Sons of Erin paid tribute today to St. Patrick in carefree celebrations through the country.
New York's fashionable Fifth Avenue became just another extension of Dublin's O'Connell Street as 1,000,000 citizens turned out to watch 100,000 Irish on parade.

In Clinton, Mass., John J. Fitzgerald dressed up his old bay mare Jenny for his 23rd annual one-man St. Patrick's Day parade through the town.

"Sure, it wouldn't seem like St. Patrick's day at all unless we turned out," Fitzgerald said.

It was a great day for the Irish in Hollywood. Proud Celtic descendants displayed a harvest of shamrocks and a rash of emerald-colored ties as they gathered on Hollywood Boulevard.

Filmland's most honored daughter of old Ireland for the day was Actress Maureen O'Hara who will be given the Irish screen award tonight at the annual St. Patrick's Day ball of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

In Waterbury, Conn., Irish-born Jim Early put away his street cleaner's broom to become mayor for a day.

"The first thing I'll do after I sit down in that soft chair at city hall will be to give the other 30 street cleaners the day off," Early said.

Cleveland planned its biggest St. Patrick's day in history, to be followed by the 85th annual banquet of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

There were no parades in Washington but the day of days for the Irish will be observed at two big clam-bakes in the nation's capitol tonight. John J. Hearne, Irish ambassador to the U. S. will be principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Society of Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

Atlanta's Hibernians planned to observe the day by spreading shamrock dust along Peachtree Street, beginning at 2 p. m. in suburban Decatur. De Kalb County Fire Chief Mike Lynch said he would put on his top hat and tails and lead celebrants around the courthouse.

At least two cities observed the holiday yesterday.

San Franciscans staged a two-hour parade up Market Street after Archbishop John J. Mitty celebrated a special solemn high mass at St. Mary's Cathedral.

More than 20,000 men and women ignored snow flurries and high winds at Newark, N. J., to march in a parade witnessed by 65,000.

Blonde Shoots Politician, Says foe

Philadelphia, March 17 (AP)—Two old political foes had a new argument today—this time over a mystery shooting that involved bullets, broken glass and a blonde.

Former Republican City Chairman William F. Meade, 47, was wounded in the shooting yesterday. He claimed he suffered cuts of the ear lobe, neck and a finger from flying glass when an unidentified assailant fired three shots through a window of a midtown Philadelphia hotel.

Democratic Dist. Atty. Richardson Dilworth said, "On the basis of information I have received, Meade was shot by Miss Virginia Carroll in the lobby of the Minerva Hotel. It seems perfectly clear to me that the shots were fired from inside the lobby."

Inspector John T. Murphy of Philadelphia police told a reporter that Meade had been shot. He said the lobe of Meade's ear was shot away by a bullet.

Murphy said Miss Carroll was interviewed with Meade at the residence of Meade's mother early today.

Dilworth's original statement on the incident said that Meade was shot by Miss Carroll, 33, identified as a former docket clerk in the D. A.'s office. He said she now works in the jury commissioner's office.

After receiving a report from Assistant Dist. Atty. John Gary on an interview with Meade, Dilworth said: "Meade's story just doesn't stack up."

He added, however, there will be no arrests "at the present time. Miss Carroll is a city employee and will be available."

Meade, who is divorced, described Dilworth's version of the shooting as a "damn fool lie."

Meade gave this version: "I was seated by the window in the lobby of the hotel. Three shots were fired by somebody outside. They all missed me. I was cut on the face, ear, neck and finger by flying glass. It was not serious."

Morton Witkin, another top GOP leader, said he was with Meade at the time of the shooting. Witkin said he was uninjured.

Dilworth and the police department didn't learn of the shooting until some 12 hours after it took place.

An unidentified man went to the rectory of St. John the Evangelist Church and told a priest about the shooting. Police said the man told the priest he wanted guidance on what to do. The priest called police. The witness told them he had seen "a murder." He said he was awakened in his Hotel Minerva room by three shots and heard the fall of a body. A few minutes later, he said, he saw the man carry the body away.

A TIRE'S BEST FRIEND—Using an electronic nail detector he developed, Heinz Freund, 50, Berlin engineer, checks a tire for any imbedded nails. When metal particle intrudes on electrical field the oscillation is reduced, and meter shows point where metal is located.

HEROIC K. C.—Commemorating the "Kansas City Spirit," this canvas by artist Norman Rockwell will soon be sent on a nationwide exhibition tour. Inspiration for the canvas, which took four months to produce, was provided by the Missouri city's fight to recover from last year's floods, and prompted by a newspaper editorial, "You Can't Lick Kansas City." It was commissioned by J. C. Hall, greeting card publisher.

DOROTHY DIX Wrong Choice

Dear Miss Dix: They say that love is blind, and I believe it more than ever before. My daughter has been going steady with a bachelor 40 years old for the past two years (she's 22) and claims she is going to marry him. I think he is wrong for her for several reasons, mainly because he suffers from a chronic dread disease that I call "tightwaditis." They both work for the same firm and have the same day off. Instead of taking her out on this day, he spends it by himself, going to shows alone then comes over here for a good hot dinner and a free evening of television. At ten o'clock he goes home because he needs his rest. He's been out all day enjoying himself while she stayed home and moped. I think the reason he has never married is that he is a selfish, stingy, self-centered person. He's never given her a gift on her birthday or at Christmas since she has known him. What she sees in him is beyond me.

WORRIED MOTHER

Answer: A worse matrimonial bet I couldn't even imagine. Even chronic tightwads try, usually to conceal the worst aspects of their failing from a possible future bride particularly if the girl has a family with money, or a good job. This apology for a man doesn't even have that decency. Does your daughter enjoy the prospect of slaving for the rest of her life in order to feed a bank account? Certain it is that she'll never get a cent for clothes, amusement, or any personal expenses from this Lothario, and she'll be darn lucky to get enough to buy the bare necessities of life.

Consider Age Difference
Furthermore, except in rare and exceptional cases, an eighteen-year age difference is too much.

However, your daughter is 22, is legally of age and presumably old enough to know her own mind — if she has one. If she determines to marry her bachelor, you can't stop her. Your role from that point is to step aside and be ready to help her when she wakes up. Don't be too eager to render financial assistance. That's exactly what Tightwad expects. Knowing you wouldn't let your child want for anything if you could help it, he'll be very willing to accept any aid you extend his way. Even if you do have to see her suffer for awhile, it's what she wants, apparently, and only through hearing the consequences of a very foolish marriage will she come to her senses.

Dear Miss Dix: We have two children, girls 4 and 6. We would very much like a larger family, but my husband recently discovered that he is diabetic. Our doctor says there is a large chance that the next baby would inherit a tendency to the disease.

MRS. BRENDA D
Answer: In a matter as important as this, I advise the very best advice obtainable — in this case the opinion of a specialist in diabetes. This is one of the diseases on which tremendous research has been done with a great deal of success. Under the care of a specialist I have known diabetic mothers to successfully bear children, but of course whether these youngsters have a tendency to inherit the disease is something that only time can tell. Do get in touch with an expert in the field and put your confidence in him.

Dear Miss Dix: I've been married almost twenty years, and have four children, all teen-agers. During all my married life I can never say I was really happy. We broke up twice and I was ready for divorce but decided to try once more. Now we are separated again and I feel it's final. Although I am heartbroken and sick, I can't go through this ordeal again. My husband has a violent, almost insane, temper. He accuses me of things I never do, threatens to disfigure me, never has a kind word for anyone in the house, and is always swearing or bickering. Would it be better to go through life without a father for the children or to stay with this one, regardless of what he is?

Answer: Keeping a home together in order to give your children a father is one thing, but hanging on in the pretense that your husband is anything but a miserable imitation of what a father should be is not particularly praiseworthy. Apparently you are in love with your husband in spite of — perhaps even because of — his brutal treatment and are using the youngsters as an excuse for going back to him after each separation. Maybe some people would pat you on the back for your martyrdom. I won't! Subjecting your children to an influence that will ultimately make nervous wrecks out of all of them is not acting for their good. If you are now separated from your husband, stay that way. Peace of mind, harmony and contentment are the greatest gifts you can have — or hand on to your offspring. Don't return them to a home of discord, fighting and blasphemy.

Used-Car King Disappears, Sought by FBI

St. Louis, March 17. (UP)—Robert L. Knetzer, who launched a "new-used" car business in an Illinois alfalfa field and wound up owing $3,500,000, was sought by the FBI today after he gave the slip to two bailiffs.

Knetzer disappeared from a hotel here Thursday while a "vacation" from a jail cell to try to raise $80,000 needed to free himself from a contempt of court sentence.

Knetzer's Attorney William Giffin and a former FBI man Garrett Phillips, who were appointed as special bailiffs to guard him on his fund raising jaunt, admitted that Knetzer was "definitely at large from court custody."

Judge Charles G. Briggie, who authorized the trip, said that Knetzer's disappearance "was comparable to breaking jail." It was the eighth time Briggie has permitted Knetzer to leave jail to raise funds.

Knetzer came into public prominence shortly after the war when he opened a "new-used" car business near Jerseyville, Ill., when new cars were difficult to get. He sold the cars at list price or below. He asked $1,000 down payment

Strike Closes Dixie Cup Plant

St. Smith, March 17 (AP)—AFL paper workers at the Dixie Cup Company's plant here have gone on strike in support of demands for a wage increase.

About 30 workers left their jobs at 11 a. m. yesterday, only a few hours before the plant was to shut down for the regular Sunday holiday. Operations at the plant were suspended, and the strikers immediately threw a picket line around the establishment.

However, Neil Kingnorth, plant manager, said the facility would reopen this morning as usual. About 235 members of the striking union, local 656, AFL Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, are employed around the establishment.

George Moore, an official of the local, said the strike was ordered because the company had hired a and the rest on delivery and for a while did deliver. But it appeared on the open market, paying standard prices. It was later charged that he had been using down payments from earlier customers to buy the cars.

Deliveries began to fall behind orders and his customers demanded their money back. The beautiful dream was shattered in 1949 and bankruptcy proceedings ensued.

Court records showed that Knetzer owes roughly $2,500,000 to creditors in several states.

new crew in anticipation of a down in wage talks.
More than 100,000 in the wage increase ranging from 15 cents an hour, Kingnorth feared that the union demands would boost wages 15 to 20 per cent and a company proposal for the wage increase of five cents an hour had been rejected by strikers.
Current pay scale at the plant ranges from 32 cents to 1.15 an hour, said Kingnorth.

Madrid — I think General Eisenhower will stay on the job here, a job which is not going well. Instead of yielding to the entreaties of the opportunists, mostly trash, who are hollering up his candidacy. But I must say that I am pleasantly surprised by some expressions of principle which I have read in a series of pieces published in the New York Herald Tribune whose advocacy of Ike is one of the reasons why I shy away.

We anti-Communists and anti-Washington citizens must be careful not to be sunk away from a good man by such opportunists as Chinaboy Henry Luce, of the Times-Limes layout, Tex McCrary, a rather famous nothing of the radio, also associated with the New York Herald Tribune, and Irving Berlin.

Arthur Garfield Hays and the sort of bleeding hearts who managed over the boycott against Draper and Ailer but couldn't spare a tear or a dime for the defense of Hester McCallough, who was put to terrible persecution for expressing an opinion that these two were pro-Red.

This following makes it difficult for strict pro-Americans to accept Eisenhower. These are New Deal champions. Their prophet was Roosevelt with his lust for authority, and fantastic extravagance. They come of a regime whose recent incarnations are as nothing compared to the conduct of the Roosevelt, including the master faker, himself.

How do they happen to "like Ike" as they say? What do they like him for?

Do they like him for declaring, that "unless we are careful, even the great necessary educational processes in our country will become yet another vehicle by which the believers in internationalism, if not outright socialism, will gain still additional power for the federal government?" Do they "like Ike" for saying, when he was president of Columbia university, "I will have no federal money in higher education as long as there is one single lot of federal control coming with it?"

I can't believe that the so-called band wagon club, with headquarters appropriately in a luxurious New York eating and drinking club, would want a man who saw a threat to education in the use of federal money as "grants" to colleges. The persons whom I have seen listed in the "I like Ike" movement are typical pro-Washington characters. They are the kind who would "vote" Eleanor Roosevelt "first lady of the world" in a poll taken between the cavilar and the duck at "21."

I find the New York Times supporting Eisenhower. What goes on here, anyway? The "education" editor of the times, one Benjamin Pine, recently gave testimony at a hearing by a Senate committee on the confiscation of the tidal oil of Texas, Louisiana and other states by the federal government.

The immorality of this theft, was disposed of by a typical chief-of-the-Supreme court and the next question is what the Washington government shall do with the money. Mr. Pine said a proposal to divide the money among the states for "education" was "a bold, pioneering step" and a "once-in-a-lifetime opportunity" for the advancement of education. Presumably, that is the opinion of the Times, but still we find the paper's candidate for president on record against "federal control" over education which is inevitable, indeed, frankly understood in this new plan. The "new thinking" holds that something called "democracy" is the religion of the future, a religion without a god, which therefore, would not fall under our constitutional verities. By Mr. Pine's proposal, this enormous fund could be used to teach "democracy" as a state religion from kindergarten to institutions of higher learning.

The Times is a partisan democratic paper. Why does the times support Eisenhower for the Republican nomination? Has it turned Republican? Has the Herald Tribune, whose nominal Republican character long ago ceased to deceive legitimate Republicans?

You see, I am puzzled because I find in this series of commitments by Eisenhower to brave, bold conservative forms which not even my favorite candidate, Mr. Taft, has expressed. It takes courage in a man with political ambitions to come out against the concentration of authority in Washington and in favor of a constitutional amendment limiting the percentage of a person's income that Congress may demand in the whimsical but ever more-arrogant revenue laws. I do not recall that Taft ever has been so bold.

If he isn't going to leave his job unfinished and hustle back to campaign for the nomination, what comfort are these fine conservative ideas to us pro-American, anti-Washington Republicans? I find myself thinking vaguely of Eisenhower in 1956. I do not think of him as one candidate this year. I find reasons to support him which I never was aware of before. He is the only man of any importance who has expressed all of them. Some of them have never crossed the lips of any other candidate.

But in view of these expressions, why are his rabble whooping him up? What is it for them? Or is his treatment the revolting scene in Madison Square Garden and the other places, Sunday, Feb.

JUST HORSEING AROUND—His flame-like white mane makes it look as if this angry critter is sure burned up at the efforts of two Cheyenne rodeo contestants to ride him. Action was part of the wild-horse race, in which the untamed horses must be saddled and ridden around the track.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By GAYLE TALBOT

Pasadena, March 15 (AP) — Outside of being pestered by Latin ball players who lost their train tickets and had passport trouble or for any one of six other reasons failed to report to training camp on time, Paul Richards appears to be a moderately happy man, as he begins his second season at the helm of the Chicago White Sox.

But the thin man never looks entirely happy, and he probably doesn't want his players to either. Bused all to Paul is an extremely serious 24-hour-a-day business, and he works at it. He drives his men with a sort of studied brutality in the spring, harder than any other manager except, possibly, Rogers Hornsby, though fellows who played with him at Detroit and elsewhere declare he was the laziest catcher who ever drew on a uniform. This could be a canard.

In his first try as a big league plot, Richards yanked the Sox up by the scruff of the neck and deposited them in fourth place in the American League. This was one of the year's outstanding feats, even if Cleveland did deserve an assist for making the mercurial Minnie Miñoso available early in the race. There was a thrilling stretch of 41 days while the Sox were in first place.

This time the man from Waxahatchie thinks he has a chance to take it all. A year ago when he talked that way he drew some tolerant smiles here and there. He refused to discuss rival clubs then, and he still does. If you wish to talk to Richards, you talk about the White Sox. But there aren't any smiles this spring. The man has proved he is loaded.

"This could be our year," he says. "I can't see where any club in the league is superior to the White Sox. All we need is comparable performances from our best men of last year, plus help from several players acquired during the season."

Paul says his club is going to run again—go for that extra base every time there is the remotest chance of success. This brand of game took the league somewhat by surprise last season and was instrumental in the team's lengthy tenure at the top. The Sox plotter at a suggestion that Nelson Fox, his great little second baseman who walloped the ball for 313 last year, was playing over his head. The boy is only 24, he points ly by the AF of L, whose nabobs have no tax troubles because their pay can be disguised as "expenses" and they can arrange "plus taxes."

Eisenhower has gone further than Taft in his rebellion against the monstrosity of unionism. He has laid it on the line that unions are not sacred cows, that they must keep their contracts or pay the victims of default and that generally they must conform to the same laws that govern the rest of us. We owe Taft much for his Taft-Hartley law. Labor, the real political force of the workers, in every test so far has expressed thanks for the small curtailments of the vicious practices of union bosses which Taft put through. But Taft is way of every word lest Truman catch him with his mouth open, whereas Eisenhower has gone almost as far as I would want any man to go.

Some think that Branch Rickey would be happy to move the Pittsburgh Pirates from San Bernardino to Florida, his old Stamping grounds. They have been struggling against unusually poor spring weather at San Bernardino, as have all the other teams in this vicinity. Weatherwise, if for no other reason, the Coast magnates picked a poor year to get tough. A baseball man who has been watching the rain come down for two or three days while his idle athletes chomp on $5 steaks is inclined to becomeumpy.

Glen Rose to Coach Porker Cage Team

Fayetteville, March 17 (AP) — The University of Arkansas, after an unsuccessful stab at ball-control, will return next winter to the fast shoot-and-follow style of play with which it reigned as kingpin of Southwest Conference basketball for so many years.

"Plain Glen" Rose, who is coming back to his alma mater as head coach, played the firehouse system here on three championship teams under the late Francis Schmidt. And Rose used the system in coaching Arkansas to five more titles in his previous tenure as Razorback coach.

"I still use the same system — shoot and pray," he says.

Rose, cage mentor at Stephen F. Austin College in Texas and past five seasons, was signed Saturday to a record Arkansas contract of five years at $7,000 a year to succeed the resigned Presley Askew. He takes over April 1.

Before going to Stephen F. Austin in 1947, Rose had been connected with the university since 1924 as athlete, coach, athletic director and athletic business manager.

As a school boy, Rose was All Southwest conference in basketball three years and in football one. His 9-year varsity coaching record at Arkansas, 1934-43, inclusive, was 150 victories and 44 defeats. His Porkers finished as low as fourth in the conference only in 1940. The same boys swept all 12 of their conference games the following season.

Askew's first team, 1950, tied for the conference title but managed only to break even in 24 games over the full season. His 1951 team finished fourth and this year the Porkers wound up in the cellar.

Ne one—much less the baffled big leaguers—can make an intelligent prediction on what will happen. The training clubs cannot baffle with an exhibition schedule or, at least, they say they will not—until the Coast League's edict is rescinded or modified. Clarence (Pants) Rowland, president of the Coasters, says this will not be done, though he could be mistaken if the pressure becomes great.

Unless there is a compromise of some sort, California probably will have seen the last of at least three big league teams—the New York Giants, the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Browns. All three have said they will haul out. The Giants and Indians say they will continue to train in Arizona but head east and down into Mexico on their exhibition tour. President Bill Veck of the Browns probably would like an excuse to shift his spring base to somewhere in Arizona—maybe Tempe—or to San Antonio, Tex. His manager, Rogers Hornsby, still thinks San Antonio is the best.

Some think that Branch Rickey would be happy to move the Pittsburgh Pirates from San Bernardino to Florida, his old Stamping grounds. They have been struggling against unusually poor spring weather at San Bernardino, as have all the other teams in this vicinity. Weatherwise, if for no other reason, the Coast magnates picked a poor year to get tough. Kansas City, March 15 (AP) — The Murray (Ky.) State College Thoroughbreds and Springfield (Mo.) State's Bears, both highly regarded but under rated five days ago, met tonight for the National Intercollegiate (NAIB) basketball championship.

Murray State, piloted by its great little Bennie Purcell, knocked off Portland (Ore.) University's Pirates 58-58, in the semi-finals played before 8,500 last night.

Springfield, seeded eighth in the (PCL), cancelled, rain.

Porterfield Sees End to His Troubles

Orlando, Fla. (AP) — Bob Porterfield doesn't mind discussing his days as a New York Yankee when misfortune followed misfortune and seemed bent on ruining a promising career hardly before it began.

Sitting on a bench in front of the clubhouse, the pitch-jawed ace of Washington's pitching staff talked freely of his sad experiences with the Yankees and expressed gratitude over his transfer to the Senators under the wing of Bucky Harris.

"I believe the worst is over," Porterfield said philosophically. "I'm sure my luck has changed — all for the good. The breaks finally are going my way."

Bob reported to Harris at Griffith Stadium last June and proceeded to win nine games against eight losses for an outfit that finished deep in the second division. He accounted for half of the Nationals' six shutouts, and hurled two three-hitters and one two-hitter. In short time, he became the most important Senator on the pitching staff.

"I always knew I could win in the majors," Porterfield said. "All I needed was to be given a chance to pitch regularly. I pitched every four days in rotation with the schedule of running and limbering up my arm in between. That's what Bucky worked me back in 1940 with the Yankees. I won five games for him in about a month after he brought me up from Newark."

"Bucky was fired that fall — I learned later it was because of his insistence on bringing me up against the wishes of General Manager George Weiss. That had nothing to do with my trouble though for Casey Stengel was great with me."

"I started an exhibition game against Brooklyn two days before the 1949 season began. The temperature was 38 and my arm cooled off during a Yankee inning when we scored four runs. I went back to the box, threw a curve and something snapped. I tried to pitch but the pain was agonizing. I finally had to go home and rest in the season."

Hard luck continued to dog Porterfield in 1950. A liner by teammate Bobby Brown hit him on the leg in spring practice and sidelined him for a month. Then on June 9, against Detroit, he was hit by the side of the head by a pitch ball. It was a close shave — only an inch higher and it might have proved fatal. As it happened, it led to constant dizzy spells and finally a ticket to Kansas City.

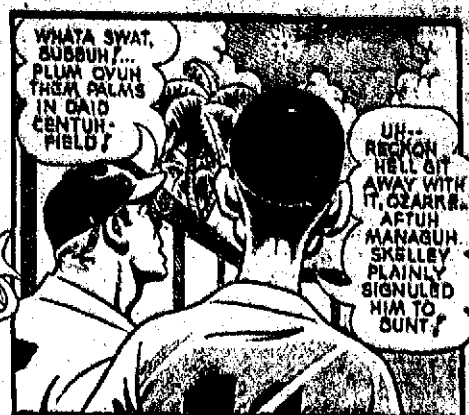

He moved up from there to Washington.

Smoking Out Communists Dreary Job

By JAMES MAHLOW

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Smoking out the Communist party has been a dreary job which will take a long time to finish.

If it was understood the job couldn't be speedy when Congress in the fall of 1950 passed, and then re-passed over President Truman's veto, a law intended to crack down on Communist activities in many directions.

This story deals with only one phase of it: forcing the Communist party to register as a Communist action outfit—meaning, a Moscow agent—and list its sources of income, with the names of its leaders and members.

Ever since April, 1951, the Justice Department has been presenting evidence to the five-member Subversive Activities Control Board, appointed by the President, to prove the Communist party is a Moscow agent.

The board itself was appointed Oct. 23, 1950, one month after the law was passed. But the board couldn't start its hearings until the following April for various reasons.

The Justice Department needed time to gather evidence, in the form of documents and witnesses, and the Communists tried to wreck the machinery by seeking court injunctions, which were denied.

So far the government lawyers have offered a ton of documents and 18 witnesses and still have six more witnesses to bring before the board to show the party is working for Moscow.

The government hopes to finish its case by May. Then it's the party's turn to produce evidence to refute the Justice Department. It could use a year or two doing just that.

But here in Washington it's thought the party, whose top leaders are in jail or fugitives may not require more than a couple of months to offer evidence in its own defense to the board.

Then the board will require more time, months probably, to reach a decision. If this board agrees with the attorney general that the party is taking orders from Moscow and tells it to register, then.

The party can appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals to overturn the board. If it looks there, the party can appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court. All that will take many months.

Assuming that the board rules against the party, it's not expected that a decision from the Supreme Court can be expected before late in 1953, at the earliest.

World Bank Fails in Iran Oil Problem

Tehran, Iran, March 17 (AP)—A World Bank team wrote "failure" today on the latest efforts to start Iran's oil flowing to the West again and packed its bags for the trip home.

The talks with Iran's government broke down last night in a deadlock and a spokesman of Iran's joint oil board announced:

"Negotiations are now ended." Later a government spokesman said he hopes that after the mission reports to officials of the bank in Washington a solution to the oil disagreement still may be found.

The bank mission, headed by Loan Officer Hector Prudhomme, was to pay a farewell call on Premier Mohammed Mossadegh today and fly later this week back to the United States.

The oil board spokesman, Aly Shayan, said the bank team and his group could not agree on the use of British technicians, the bank's position in operating Iran's nationalized oil industry and the price to be paid for the oil.

The bank had hoped to operate the now-idle industry pending a final settlement between Iran and the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, whose vast holdings in Iran Mossadegh's government nationalized last year.

Mossadegh refused to allow any of the British technicians he ousted to return. The bank said it could not discriminate against technicians from any of its 50 member countries.

McKinney, Truman Talk Things Over

Key West, Fla., March 17 (AP)—President Truman and Democratic National Committee Chairman Frank E. McKinney met here this week for talks which may influence Truman's decision whether to seek re-election.

The exact date of the meeting has not been announced. It will be the first talks the two have had since the New Hampshire presidential primary, in which McKinney suggested Truman should be a candidate. The President took a surprise beating at the hands of Tennessee's Sen. McCarver.

Now to recover lost ground is expected to be a main topic of the talks.

Close associates of the President today say that for a new political move on the part of McKinney may take the form of a campaign against Sen. McCarver.

HEY! "NEEDLE" SOMEONE YOUR OWN SIZE!—Little Uliak is expected to raise a lousy Eskimo howl immediately after Maj. Paul H. Bazinet, of Montreal, gets to the bottom of the trouble. Uliak's mother looks as if she doesn't appreciate the point that Major Bazinet is about to impress on her son. On duty with the Canadian Army during "Exercise Sun Dog Three," in Northern Quebec, the medical officer had no casualties to contend with, and so spent his time in public health work with Eskimos of the Ungava Bay region.

She lost her diamond ring while packing tomatoes and figures it's in one of the 20,000 packages of them showing up in retail stores. Since the news got out, there was a boom in tomato sales.

Future Pilots May Fight on Their Bellies

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Fighter pilots of the future may fly on their bellies, watching for the enemy in periscopes and mirrors.

The belly, or "prone" position, is theoretically the best one for fighter pilots, because it helps prevent "blackouts" while pulling out of sharp dives and other body-slugging maneuvers of fast action.

Also, it would allow a more shallow aircraft fuselage, thereby making for a faster, more maneuverable fighter plane.

But, poorer outside visibility for the pilot, and the fatigue inherent in maintaining unusual eye rotations have so far been drawbacks to the adoption of "prone" flight.

Today, Lt. Col. G. O. Emerson of the Aero Medical Laboratory, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, came up with a new slant in a report to the 23rd annual international convention of the Aero Medical Association.

That's an organization concerned with safety and comfort of airmen not only in planes of the present and prospective future but also in "space ships," if and when they are developed.

Col. Emerson said use of mirrors, periscopes and prisms—while far from perfect in the visibility line—would allow a situation wherein the prone pilot could sometimes look straight ahead, thus resting his eyes from a steady upward gaze.

And this "intermittency of upward gaze," he said, might largely end the fatigue factor of "prone" flight on missions lasting more than an hour.

Twelve Violent Deaths in State

By The Associated Press

Twelve persons died violently in Arkansas last week, three of them over the weekend.

Fred Thompson, a construction worker, was believed to have drowned in Lake Webb near Camden Sunday.

A 2-year-old boy was injured fatally Sunday when he fell from a moving car in front of his home in the Barkada Community in Drew County. Daniel R. Herring, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Herring, died in a Monticello hospital.

In Paragould, the body of a 70-year-old retired farmer was found stuffed in a closet of his small apartment Saturday. Police said the man, William T. Peebles, was beaten to death.

Police are searching for the man's roommate, Don Perkins, 33, for questioning in connection with the death.

motored to Texarkana Wednesday.

Many Like Fulbright for Nomination

By GORDON BROWN

Washington, March 17 (AP)—While Sen. Fulbright is getting some mention as an Arkansas "favorite son" for the Democratic presidential nomination, he favors Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), an announced candidate.

One of Fulbright's most enthusiastic backers is Rep. Trimble (D-Ark.), who says "I'm for Fulbright in 1951, 1953, 1954, 1955 and 1956."

Another Arkansan, Rep. Brooks Hays (D) says the country should be ready to take a man of Fulbright's caliber along about 1956.

Rep. Trimble is due to advance a couple of notches on the House Public Works Committee next year—assuming he is re-elected. Chairman Buckley (D-NY) said last year he probably won't run for re-election and Rep. Larcade (D-La.), second Democrat, is retiring because of ill health.

If these things come to pass, Trimble would be No. 3 Democrat on the committee and would head either the flood control or the rivers and harbors subcommittee—providing Democrats retained control of the house. Otherwise, he'd just be No. 3 Democrat.

Incidentally, Trimble got a letter this week addressed to "The Embassy of Arkansas, Washington, D. C." It was from a young school boy in New York asking some Arkansas information.

Trimble gets most of these oddly addressed letters which obviously are intended for an Arkansas representative. That's because he jokes the mail clerks and they take a delight in delivering such letters to him.

Along this line, Rep. Hays got a letter from Arkansas the other day which asked "please send me three copies of your information."

The staff puzzled over it for some time and then concluded the writer was one of several school children writing in for some information so they sent him the same information the others asked.

Bold Experiment Still Studied

Little Rock, March 17 (AP)—A 36-member planning committee will meet here in closed session today to discuss Arkansas' role in the Ford Foundation plan for teacher education.

One of the leading exponents for Arkansas' participation in the "bold experiment," Dean Henry Kronenberg of the University of Arkansas, said the committee may make "some announcement" today.

Man Sought in Slaying of Farmer

Paragould, March 17 (AP)—Sandy-haired, stocky Don Perkins was the object of a state-wide police hunt today in connection with the slaying of a 70-year-old retired farmer.

Perkins, 33, is wanted for questioning about the death of his roommate, William T. Peebles, whose body was found stuffed in a closet of his Paragould apartment Saturday.

Coroner Ralph W. Mitchell said Peebles apparently had been beaten to death with a brick or steel wedge on Sunday, March 9.

Police said about $175 belonging to Peebles is missing.

Emerson Girls Wins State Title

In the finals here Saturday night, Emerson quickly took the lead and held it throughout the game.

Nancy Williams was Emerson's high scorer with 27 points. Siloam Springs' Beulah Shock netted 21 points.

WHAT ARE TODAY'S FACTS ABOUT NEW CAR ENGINES AND POWER STEERING?

LAST YEAR Chrysler introduced its new FirePower V-8 engine, and America's first passenger-car full-time power steering. Both new ideas "took hold" in a big way.

Today, others are announcing "new engines" and "power steering" . . . but with some basic differences worth keeping in mind if you're buying a new car.

First: about "new engines." The fact is, a really new engine design happens only once in a great while. It did happen in the FirePower V-8. Its 180 h.p. was only incidental to its basic new design. Its key idea is a hemispherical combustion chamber, which makes even non-premium gasoline develop more usable power than other designs can get from premium fuel.

Only Chrysler engineering has so far mastered this design. Several cars do have some power increase, in terms of previous designs. The important fact is that FirePower is not a "warmed-over" engine, but brand new in performance, construction, and efficiency.

In power steering, too, there are basic differences.

Chrysler uses hydraulic power, always in effect, to do two things. First, it does 4/5 the steering work as you turn the wheel. Second, we've cut the amount of wheel turn needed by over 1/3.

Parking or cruising, you get more and easier control than ever before. In sand, snow, or ruts, the hydraulic power is always there to keep the front wheels from "steering back" at you. You get the same amount and feel of control all the time . . . full-time ease and full-time safety.

Actually, the differences, both in engine performance and in steering safety and ease are impossible to put in words . . . but just as impossible not to feel the moment you get into a Chrysler and drive it! Why not see your Chrysler dealer and do that, soon?
